

Science industries

With the arrival of Newcastle Science City and our growing international reputation for scientific innovation, the science sector is increasingly important to our region.

We work on a variety of PR and marketing campaigns promoting the work happening within our universities and science-based industries across the UK, including getting the message out about the vital skills and talent needed to fulfil the sector's future potential.

From communicating complex and technical stories to creating video case studies of the behind-the-scenes people in the science industries – our team has the depth of knowledge and understanding needed to bring the science industries to life.

